Excerpt: . him in 1764, 1765 and 1773, he was appointed December 1, 1777, to revise the Acts of Assembly, and was to lay a fair copy of the whole complement before the next session of Assembly, and four days later he was allowed 500 for the work. Again on May 12, 1783, a bill was brought in to authorize him to revise, print and publish all the laws now in force and use. This bill was in answer to an offer from him, but like the proposal of 1777 came to naught. (See chap. 46, laws 1783, and chap. 4, laws of 1787.) To Davis also belongs the honor of establishing the first newspaper in the colony. This was the North Carolina Gazette c, with the freshest advices, foreign and domestic. Number one probably appeared in the spring of 1755, as No. 103 is dated April 15, 1757. It was published Thursdays, on a sheet post size, folio, often on a half sheet, and bore the imprint: Newbern: Printed by James Davis, at the Printing-Office in Front-street; where all persons may be supplied with this paper at Sixteen shillings per Annum: And where Advertisements of a moderate length are inserted for Three Shillings the first Week, and Two shillings for every week after. And where also Book-binding is done reasonably. This newspaper venture succeeded perhaps better than was to have been expected. The Gazette was published about six years and then suspended. The American...
