The records of a graded school should furnish the following additional items: average cost per capita for supervision; for instruction; for incidentals; total cost per capita. School Management, li. GOVERNMENT. 114. The qualities needed by a good disciplinarian may be included under the terms Firmness and Good Nature: Suayiter In Modo, Fortiter In Re: A hand of steel in a velvet glove. These qualities are rarely found in equipoise. Keen sympathies and abounding charity often encourage lax government; while firmness is sometimes the exponent of a harsh, unfeeling nature. Firm discipline is the easier and the more merciful; weak governments are proverbially cruel. 115. The disciplinarian should be clothed with ample powers: Possunt, Quia Fosse Videntur. It is the certainty, rather than the severity of punishment, that is a terror to evil-doers. 12 Or, in another form: , Sit rigor, sal non exatperans, si amor, ml non emolluris. Discipline should be steady and continuous, not intermittent or spasmodic. 116. The foundations of good government are justice and benevolence. That a school should be protected from the influence of a vicious pupil, is simply a matter of justice to the well disposed; and it is benevolence to the wrong-doer to be constrained to forsake his evil ways. To be malevolent, passionate or revengeful in discipline, is to destroy its moral effect. 117. The best system of government is...
